

Freedom: The Best Part of Life

Most people don't know what the best part of life is. They could guess and say money. They can guess and say fame. They can guess and say appearance. Actually, the best parts of life are eternal freedom, freedom in America and showing freedom to people who have none.

Eternal life is the most precious. With Jesus we are allowed to have eternal freedom or life. The people who choose not to take that freedom and to go by the world are not going to be happy, and will not experience the best part of life. As saved Christians, we can joyfully and freely worship our Lord and can know that we are going to heaven without any insecurity. We need to hold on to what we believe so that nobody can take it away from us.

As Americans, we have freedom in America as well as eternal freedom. America is a free country, while the middle east and Korea are run differently and do not have as much freedom as we do. Americans can speak and dress as they want. Some other countries aren't allowed to do those things. If one person from India stood up and back talked about the leader and someone found out, that person would be seriously punished, whereas here in America no body would care since we have freedom of speech. In America we can dress as we please, on the other hand in India the women have to wear a veil over their faces.

In my opinion, the best part of the best part of life is freedom to witness. Preaching the gospel is one of the most treasured freedoms for Christians. I am thankful that I have the time and allowance to share the Bible with the people around me. God would want us to witness to nonbelievers. Sometimes we even preach the Bible when we don't even know it. I put ^{Ro.} witnessing down as the best part of life because whenever I do, I feel happy like I did something right and it was all for the glory of God. It is right to teach God's freedom to people. When people see that you are helping other people they might do the same.

There are people that have different perspectives on life and the best parts of it. There are some things that block a person's view of the best parts of life. We all have opinions, and we all have facts on this subject. People can classify it however they wish, but all of the above are the best parts of life.
