

"The Best Part of Life"

Friends are very important in life. They can help put a smile on your face. They can also help you keep a peaceful spirit. To me, the best part of life is a friend who is caring, respectful, and has a strong faith in Jesus Christ.

A caring friend is a good thing to have in life. He or she can show this attribute by sharing my sympathy when something goes wrong. A good friend will try to comfort me when something goes wrong in my life. A caring friend will help me get back on the right track by sharing wise advice with me.

A respectful peer is a necessary part of life. He or she will let you talk without interruption. Another characteristic of a respectful friend is that he or she will always be polite. They will use words such as, "yes", "please", "no", and "thank you". Another characteristic of a respectful friend is to always show good manners. An example of this would be to stay quiet when you are not allowed to speak or when someone else is speaking to you. Another sign of respect is their ability to respect someone else's decisions in life, whether they agree with it or not.

A friend who has a strong faith in the Lord Jesus Christ is a great part of life. The first way a good friend can demonstrate evidence of possessing this is to offer me Godly wisdom. God's wisdom comes to us when we read His Word. Another thing a good Christian friend should strive to do is to make wise decisions. Someone who reads their Bible would understand what Jesus would do in different situations. The last thing I think is very important about being a Christian is always trying to control that tongue. Good Christians should always try their absolute best not to curse or speak wrong of another.

A friend who is caring, always respectful, and shares my faith in God is the best part of life. Proverbs 18:24 states that a friend with many companions may be left alone when facing a problem. But God is a friend who is even closer than a brother. This means that we shouldn't always put out trust on just our even great friends. We should ultimately trust God first and then look for friends who are most like Him. Remember, a good friend is very nice to have and a great one even better, But we always need to put our trust in God first, no matter what the circumstances may be! God will never turn his back on us.
